ATTORNEY M'KEAN CONCLUDES HIS ADDRESS FOR THE DEFENSE.

Court Adjourned at 1:20 O'clock This Afternoon Until 9 O'clock Tomorrow Morning.

COURT ROOM WAS PACKED

With Spectators. Many of Them Ladies—Assistant District Attorney Patterson Will Follow This Afternoon and Then Will Come Court's Charge.

Special to The Courier.

UNIONTOWN, Sept. 27.—Attorney W. C. McKean this morning began his address to the jury in behalf of Frank Smith. The big court room is packed with spectators, many of whom are ladies. The opinion is that the case will go to the jury some time this evening. Attorney McKean did not stop speaking for lunch.

At 1:20 this afternoon Attorney McKean concluded his address for the defense. Judge Van Swearingen stated that in view of the fact that it would be late for Attorney Patterson to begin his address for the Commonwealth until late this afternoon court would adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Attorney McKean spoke about five hours. The case will likely go to the jury late tomorrow afternoon.

At 5:12 Attorney W. C. McKean opened the argument for the defense. He first offered an apology for intruding further upon the time of the 12 men who are to decide the fate of Frank Smith; complimented them on their conduct since entering the box. His address in part, was as follows: "I am satisfied that I was two weeks ago, when I put the question to you, that you will do your duty. Your duty is one that you might very well want to avoid. You have heard the testimony and I know you will give to me that courtesy that has characterized you throughout the progress of this trial. It is my desire to help, rather than to stand in your way. If I have any influence from the testimony that is unwarranted, speak up. If I quote a witness wrong, speak up; the distinct attorneys do likewise; and the court, if you please."

"When I am done, I will ask a verdict of not guilty, at your hands. When my friend Mr. Patterson stands before you and hands no my bouquet of flowers, I want you to look for a thorn under every petal. I stand here for the avowed purpose of saving the man's life. He will stand here for the avowed purpose of putting a rope around his neck. It is the difference of one point of view."

"I am fully satisfied, and I believe you are fully satisfied, that there is a vast difference between forming your opinion in the morning from discussing a case with your neighbors, or from the newspapers and going into the jury box and making up a verdict under oath."

"There is not much dispute about many things in this case. I said in opening week before last that we would not dispute the taking of the life of Evans Moser and D. Porter Smith; the dispute will be about something else. Blackstone says that murder in the first degree must be the unlawful taking of life by a person of sound reason and discretion."

"The life of two reasonable creatures has been taken against the law and under the peace of the Commonwealth. If you find that Frank Smith was of sound memory on the evening of February 27, then he is guilty of the crime with which he is charged. I hesitate just now to open the argument."

"I might go at it from several viewpoints. I do not intend to elude any measure of the law. The Commonwealth cannot say I have evaded one point of the law, namely that he did not know the nature, the consequences, or the nature of his act; that he did not know right from wrong or an act that he could not control."

"Right here I might refer to the popular disapproval against this form of a defense. I know that it has its origin in people who hear, read and do not give consideration to what they hear or read. They have some spite, feeling or revenge and do not think of the wrong they are creating. Perhaps they are ignorant of the law, but it is a proper defense. Could any man come before a court and jury with a better defense, if it be a proper one? And yet there are some people who undertake to ridicule it. That is the man's defense."

"Now what's the testimony. Out here in Greensburg township, he was raised; raised properly, educated in the schools; a bright, intelligent young man; married, built himself a home; the mother died and in time it appears that Porter Smith began paying some attention to a Mrs. Wolfe. There was some opposition but never to the extent of taking a life."

"It seems that on the 24th of February, Porter Smith spent Sunday with Mrs. Hannah Wolfe. "There is no question but that Mrs. Evans Moser stopped at the house of Frank Smith, called him out and communicated to him the whereabouts of his father that day. Later in the evening, Moser told him the same thing. And their words made him a devil. Now what is the idea of the Commonwealth? The love of gold. The family conceived the idea that there was a young wife coming into the family who would soon get the $30,000 of Porter Smith. He was 72 years old, and then Frank Smith said: 'There never shall be a young widow who shall get the money my mother helped to earn.'"

Mrs. Hannah Wolfe.

"And then he lays his plans for the devil, cleaned his guns, loaded them; placed the safes and crackers where he could get them quickly; hid near the pig pen, and fired a 34 caliber bullet into the body of his father, causing him to sink to the ground in death. Then he goes to the home of his sister and takes the life of his brother-in-law."

"Now that's the theory of the Commonwealth. As I have said before, that theory will not bear inspection of you 12 men. Let us see. We may only judge the actions of another man by putting ourselves in their place for the time being. Suppose that we become determined to prevent that marriage even to the point of taking our father's life. Now remember, we are looking at it from the point of a sane man. You recall the definition of the physician that the mind in that faculty by which we choose; by which we refuse to do a thing. Now after I have struck my father down, there is no necessity to leave the country and raise a hue and cry. My place will be in bed where I will be least expected. I'll take by rifle out on the lonely road from the Smithfield church, infested by strangers and fire the fatal shot from behind some bush. I'll have my sister come running to my home, crying, 'My God, Frank, someone has killed father.' Then I will run to the body and fall on it, crying the tears of sorrow."

"I would not have gone to the home of Evans Moser, crying, 'Where is Evans. I want to kill him.' I would have struck him down at his door, to which he would have come in response to my call. Then I would have returned to my bed. If he had killed these men for their money, why didn't he kill the children and Mrs. Moser? He would have been left there where they were."

"How childlike and simple was the plan of escape made by this defendant. You know and I know that any man of sane reasoning powers would not have shot down his father under these circumstances."

"Let us see if this plan of escape was not silly, as some of the physicians said. He had $1,000. There were railroads, but instead of putting money in his pocket and the scene of his crime we find him hiding under a rock up in the mountains. The next day we find him sitting within sound of my voice, on the jail steps, going to give himself up. And then he saw on a building across the street a notice of a reward for himself that was not there. And so he changes his mind, went to Greensburg; had his manacles shaved off. Do you think that would change him any?"

McKean then reviewed the entire case followed by Smith, denouncing it as silly to the very extreme. He ridiculed Patterson's object lesson to Dr. P. F. Smith, who said the plan was not. "If I told you that table had four legs, and you then proceeded to whittle the legs with a penknife, I couldn't say the whittling was wrong, and yet Mr. Patterson would have cried out, 'Then what do you mean by saying they were legs, at the beginning?'"

Now let us return to the motive of the deed. 'Avarice' is the only thing at which the Commonwealth could grasp. Some of you men have buried (Continued on Second Page.)

Veterans By Thousands at Gettysburg

United Press Telegram. GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 27.—It is estimated that thirty thousand people, the majority of whom are veterans, will be here to attend the dedication this afternoon of the memorial to Pennsylvania's 110,000 soldiers who participated in the battle of Gettysburg.

General H. S. Halleck, president of the Philadelphia, president of the Memorial Commission, tendered the memorial to the State. The Governor replied briefly. Major General D. McGraw of Reading, Captain James A. Gardner of New Castle and Gen. James W. Latta will be the speakers.

MAN LONG DEAD VOTED AT ARNOLD.

Lewis Muse, in Grave Eight Months, Had Ballot Recorded.

FIFTY WITNESSES WERE HEARD

Yesterday in Case Between Rival Candidates, Boyd and Sullivan, for the Legislative Nomination in Westmoreland County.

Special to The Courier.

GREENSBURG, Sept. 27.—More than 50 witnesses have now given testimony before Commissioner William A. Kusko, who is taking testimony in the irregularities in the voting at the primaries at Arnold on June 4. Yesterday was a busy day for the attorneys and the principals in the investigation and some highly interesting evidence was adduced and some very funny situations were enacted.

One of the most remarkable of the irregularities which was uncovered in the investigation came up for a second round, that of a vote being cast by Lewis Muse, a man who had been dead for about eight months. Evidence was introduced to the effect that Muse had been laid to rest quite a long time before the vote alleged to have been cast by him was slipped in to the Arnold ballot box.

The attorneys for Henry H. Boyd also tried to draw from several of the witnesses the fact that three bartenders on the day of the primaries were permitted to accompany many of the voters into the booths and to assist them in marking their ballots. It was also shown that 60 pink ballots, or those used as sample or specimen ballots were voted.

Among those placed on the witness stand was the entire election board. James P. Mulvihill was called and gave some testimony, none of which had any particular bearing on the case. C. L. Zarrest, the one inspector, gave what was perhaps the most damaging testimony to the side of the defense. He stated that on the day of the nomination he insisted that affidavits be made in the cases of non-registered voters for the reason that it had caused trouble in the past. His judgment was overruled and no affidavits were made. The other inspectors, W. G. Bartlett, also gave testimony.

Both sides are claiming that things look particularly bright for them. The Sullivan people say that more of the witnesses have testified that they voted for Boyd than have voted for Sullivan, therefore they are willing to purge the Arnold vote of those non-registered and let it go at that. The Boyd people on the other hand insist that by their cross examination they have brought out the fact that many of the witnesses were untruthful on the stand and that their misrepresentations are so apparent that their testimony will have but little weight. They will insist that the entire Arnold vote be thrown out.

The hearing will be resumed in Greensburg Thursday.

R. M. VANCE PASSES AWAY.

Old Resident and Veteran Baltimore & Ohio Employee.

HAD BEEN ILL LONG TIME

Deceased Was 78 Years Old and Had Been Resident of Conneltsville Practically All His Life—Among First Residents of South Side.

Following an illness of six months, Robert M. Vance, aged 78 years and 11 months, one of the oldest and most widely known residents of Conneltsville, died this morning at 2 o'clock at his late home, No. 111 West Cedar avenue. Mr. Vance had been confined to his bed since a week ago last Sunday. His condition gradually grew worse and from last Saturday night no hopes were entertained for his recovery. Death was due to the infirmities of old age. During the six months he had been confined to his home the greater part of the time. About two weeks ago he was able to walk to the corner of South Pittsburgh street and Cedar avenue. He regained consciousness yesterday morning and knew the members of his family up until a short time before his death.

Mr. Vance was a son of the late Joshua and Elizabeth McGuffee Vance, who at their time were among the most widely known residents of Conneltsville. He was born in West Main street, where the Wallace property is now located. When he was quite small his parents moved to Hickory Bottom, DuPont township, and it was on a farm that Mr. Vance spent the greater part of his boyhood days. Had he lived until next Sunday he would have celebrated the 51st anniversary of his marriage to Miss Frances B. Harr, who was born and reared at Lionier, Westmoreland county. The marriage was solemnized at Hickory Bottom. On the 50th anniversary of their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Vance celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Mr. Vance's mother died when he was but a child. His father died in 1892 at the ripe old age of 55 years. After spending almost a year of their married life at Hickory Bottom, Mr. and Mrs. Vance came to Conneltsville where they have resided for 60 years. Mr. Vance was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church for over 60 years and was a member of the board of trustees for several years. He was an old member of the Odd Fellows and was a charter member of the Knights of Pythias. He held the office of Keeper of Records and Seals in the latter lodge, for over 35 years and was in office at the time of his death. He was a supporter of the Democratic party and was at one time a member of the local school board.

When a young man he learned the carpenter trade and was employed at the Baltimore & Ohio shops for 42 years and six months. He had been on the pension list for about five years. Mr. Vance was highly respected by his wide circle of friends. He was well posted in current events and almost up until the last he displayed great interest in all movements which were being made for the welfare of the town. He was a great reader and was a very interesting conversationalist. He is the last surviving member of a large family.

In addition to his widow he is survived by the following children: Miss Jennie, at home; Joshua of Midway, Alaska; Mrs. Harry Hershey of Harrisburg; C. M. Vance of Conneltsville; Mrs. W. D. Gilliland of Bellevue; Miss Mary, at home; and Mrs. J. E. Cogley of Conneltsville. Nine grandchildren also survive. Funeral from his late home Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. R. C. Wolff, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, will officiate. Interment in Chestnut Hill cemetery.

TROUBLE IN DARKTOWN.

Fight Between Two Colored Men Ends in Squire's Office.

John Torrence, colored, was arrested last night about 9:30 o'clock on Arch street for fighting. The arrest was made by Officer George Funder. This morning Torrence was given a hearing before Burgess J. L. Evans and was fined $5.00 or 72 hours in the borough jail. Later Burgess Evans withdrew the fine and sentence and turned the prisoner over to Constable S. E. Nelson for a hearing before Squire P. M. Buttermore of the West Side on a charge of assault and battery and carrying of the peace, made by Samuel Lee, colored, also of Conneltsville. The hearing will be held this afternoon.

CUMBERLAND WELCOMES W. M.

President Bush Assured of Financial, Commercial and Public Support.

BIG MASS MEETING HELD

Last Night at Which the New Railroad Was Extended Welcome to the Queen City—Western Maryland Officials Confer with City Officials.

Special to The Courier.

CUMBERLAND, Sept. 27.—The financial, commercial, mercantile, manufacturing, professional and public interests of the city of Cumberland have never been given more characteristic and harmonious representation than that which found expression at the Y. M. C. A. mass meeting last night in tribute to the presence of President D. F. Bush and Vice President and General Manager Alexander Robertson of the Western Maryland railroad, who came in response to the invitation of the Mayor, the City Commissioners and the Board of Trade, to discuss proposed improvements of the Western Maryland in and about this city and county.

Previous to the mass meeting a conference between the Western Maryland officials and the Mayor, the City Commissioners and the Board of Trade committee, Messrs. A. A. Doub, Hugh A. McMillen, D. P. Miller, M. H. Sloan and Col. John Keating was held at the winter works building, the object being to ascertain if President Bush and General Manager Robertson had a concrete proposition, relative to the contemplated improvements of the Western Maryland in this city to submit to the citizens of Cumberland. It was here made plain that the plans of the Western Maryland directly involving the city of Cumberland had not sufficiently matured to justify a statement in detail or to submit a proposition just at this time.

The mass meeting began, moved and ended on schedule, with a unanimity of sentiment and harmony of expression remarkable to relate considering the varied interests represented by fully three hundred individuals, the bone and sinew of Cumberland's prosperity, progress and development. Mayor George G. Young called the meeting to order and after expressing his delight at the spontaneous assembly of business and professional men, he introduced President D. F. Bush of the Western Maryland.

SHERMAN PLANNING REVENGE

For the Slight That He Feels Has Been Thrust Upon Him—Colonel Roosevelt Out in Statement Declaring War Without Quarter.

United Press Telegram.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—(Special.)—Two Republican factions and bitter and actual fighting is predicted before the State Republican convention adjourns. The State committee's nomination of Vice President Sherman for the chairmanship angered Colonel Roosevelt's following, and they are urging the ousting of the State committee. They suggest no compromise, and want to jam through an ultra progressive platform.

It is predicted that if attempts are made to force a radical platform there will be an open split. It is planned by Timothy L. Woodruff, State chairman, to open the convention at noon. Woodruff will present the name of Vice President Sherman for temporary chairman. Chairman Grison, of the New York county delegation will offer an amendment, substituting the name of Theodore Roosevelt as temporary chairman, thus precipitating the fight. It is announced there will be some hot speeches before the roll call. Committee chairman Barnes has planned to denounce Col. Roosevelt to his face and it is expected the Colonel will reply warmly.

In a statement today Colonel Roosevelt declared war without quarter on the Old Guard as a result of last night's committee meeting. He attacks the committee for endorsing Sherman and the official declaration that there was no fraud or deceit in the original selection of Sherman. "The conduct of a majority of the State committee puts the clearest light on what the contest is. Our fight is squarely against corruption and ancient bosses. When the New York county delegation will offer an amendment, substituting the name of Theodore Roosevelt as temporary chairman, thus precipitating the fight. It is announced there will be some hot speeches before the roll call. Committee chairman Barnes has planned to denounce Col. Roosevelt to his face and it is expected the Colonel will reply warmly."

The indication is that the Old Guard has abandoned hope. Sherman, outwardly is smiling, but he is bitter and made it plain he intends to seek revenge for the slight received. Colonel Roosevelt has officially approved the platform but is closely guarding the primary plank in the "big noise." The platform denounces graft and grafters, corporations that "dubious legislators and purchased favored laws and privileges" are condemned. "The party is pledged to enact more severe penalties for bribery."

The convention convened at 12:07. Rev. Joseph Carve, of Saratoga, delivered the opening invocation. Colonel Roosevelt arrived shortly after twelve and was loudly cheered. He took a seat with the Nassau county delegates and held a reception in his chair. The Utica delegation cheered upon Sherman's arrival.

Chairman Woodruff, naming Vice President Sherman, said: "President Taft desired that the party here, and representing the largest and most potent Republican constituency in the United States should endorse his administration. This, I know, from personal knowledge. What was more natural than the selection of the Vice President of the United States, Mr. Sherman?"

Woodruff read the correspondence between himself and Colonel Roosevelt. His letter explained the selection of Sherman. The Colonel replied that he did not desire the position, but merely said he would accept it if it was desired that he do so.

"Roosevelt manifested that he desired to propound the doctrine of the new nationalism," Woodruff declared. When Woodruff mentioned President Taft, forty seconds applause followed.

White-Paid Costs.

James White of Valley Forge was given a hearing last evening before Squire P. M. Buttermore of the West Side on a charge of carrying concealed weapons made by County Detective Frank McLaughlin. White was about 17 years old and colored. The case was settled by the defendant paying the costs.

The Arpad Kail Cases Are Scheduled to Come Up Today.

Today is the date set for hearings for Banker Arpad G. Kail of Uniontown, charged with the embezzlement of thousands of dollars of money entrusted to him for transmission to the old country. Some of the hearings were held a month back, but were continued until now, to allow the money in question time to arrive at its destination.

It is said that there are in all vicinity 20 cases. Foreigners in the vicinity of Fairbance became alarmed at the failure of money they had given Kail, to arrive in Austria. After making inquiries, the foreigners brought actions for embezzlement. As soon as this was done before Justice James P. Farrell of Fairbance, others sought to Justice Paul R. Conroy of South Union township, while a few proceeded to call through Justice D. M. Bluer of Uniontown.

A rule also occurred on Kail's bank, but all demands on money deposited there were promptly met. The defendant then hurriedly arranged to send the money, and it is expected to have arrived before this time. Kail's health has been very poor for several months and the negligence is laid to this fact. His financial standing is considered very high by those supposed to be in a position to know.

Chance to Get Basket Ball Franchise From Greensburg in Central League.

The franchise of the Greensburg team of the Central Basketball League is for sale. The agreement of sale, of course, includes the players. Greensburg has one of the strongest teams in the league. Since the Greensburg franchise has been put up for sale there has been considerable talk here, by a number of local sportsmen of taking over the franchise. This seems possible, as Conneltsville's athletic circle have been ardent admirers of the Greensburg tossers.

TUESDAY EVENING, SEP. 27, 1910.

THE BIGGEST TOWN IN FAYETTE COUNTY.

The Uniontown press and doubtless the Uniontown people are very much elated over the announcement that the population of Uniontown exceeds that of Conneltsville by about 500, the official figures being: Uniontown, 12,311; Connellsville, 12,816, Uniontown over Conneltsville, 499.

But it is entirely safe to say that if the proposed plan of the Census Bureau, to report the commercial population of the larger cities, is extended to the smaller ones, and there seems to be no reason why it should not, Conneltsville will be found to be a larger town than Uniontown.

When we consider the size of a city or town, especially for commercial purposes, we do not stop to inquire concerning its chartered boundaries, which are usually overdrawn somewhere, but include in our estimate all the built-up contiguous or immediately adjacent territory. Recognizing this fact, the Census Bureau proposes to apply this rule to the larger centers of population and make up a supplemental tabulation showing the actual sizes of the cities as compared with their populations within their city limits.

If this rule is applied to Conneltsville it will take in, not only South Connellsville, but also a large area of population on the north and west of our present boundaries, enough we should say to add from 2,000 to 3,000 to the present census figures. Uniontown could not beat this.

Commercially speaking, it is therefore plain that Conneltsville is still Fayette county's biggest town.

AS TO SECOND AND THIRD TERMS.

President Taft's attitude toward a second term is authoritatively stated to be substantially as follows:

He is not actively seeking a second term. He is devoting himself solely to the duties of his office and to the redemption of the pledges made in the Republican National platform.

He has found the duties of his office exacting. If not irksome, but he has not as yet as has been reported that he was willing to step aside. He has not thought of deserting his friends.

Colonel Roosevelt's attitude toward a third term was emphatically stated in 1904, when he declared that under no circumstances would he be a candidate for another term.

A number of curious persons would like to know whether he will reaffirm this declaration in 1910.

If "Uncle Joe" Cannon will only accept that offer to go in vaudeville it might encourage a number of other well known folks to do the two-day.

WHICH WILL BE FAYETTE'S FIRST CITY?

The announcement of the Uniontown census figures immediately followed by a demand for city government. The Herald says:

The Uniontown census figures have been officially announced. They are gratifying. Elsewhere in this issue they are set forth, and the percentage of increase figured out. There is also some comparison with Conneltsville, but that is beside the question—we may claim Conneltsville because we have fallen behind, but it is only chaff.
There is yet time for the Uniontown people who have the wealth like we have, but because she has the proper public spirit and after all, that is the more valuable.

But the figures show that beyond any doubt Uniontown is entitled to third class city government. The sooner this form is adopted the better.
The Herald has frequently referred to the manifest disadvantages which this town now labors under because it has outgrown inadequate and obsolete borough government.

A number of local newspapers refer to the Western Maryland as the Wabash. This is an error which probably arose from the fact that the first extension of the Western Maryland from Cumberland to Pittsburgh was planned to connect with the Wabash Trunk line, however, fell through.

The present Western Maryland extension from Cumberland connects at Connellsville with the Vanderbilt railroad system represented by the Pittsburgh, McKeesport & Youghiogheny.
When it was proposed to connect the Western Maryland with the Wabash, the Gould interests were reported to be large if not controlling factors in the Western Maryland. The Vanderbilt interests are now reported to be occupying that position. The ownership has shifted. It is further reported that the money for the Western Maryland extension was furnished by or through the Vanderbilt interests.
The Western Maryland is not the Wabash by any means, nor does it give promise of ever being any direct connection therewith.

THE SMOKE NUISANCE AND WHAT IT MEANS.

A Uniontown citizen wants to abolish the smoke nuisance and the Uniontown Herald calls on the Chamber of Commerce and the borough authorities to accomplish the desired result.
The chief object of such bodies is usually to make a little more smoke and not to drive it away. The smoke is unpleasant, but it means dollars to the community.

We are reminded of the fact that,
under the operation of the last Democratic Tariff-for-Roscoe Only law, the atmosphere of Conneltsville and the coko region generally became remarkably pure, but that the people were unhappily unhappy.

The Washington Observer denounces John Kinley Toner as a demagogue because he dared to address the public schools in a certain eastern town. What will it say of him if he is caught talking to some of the live stock at the Alexandria fair?

Colonel Congo, the Republican candidate for Congress, is pushing his campaign in a quiet and unobtrusive manner. He is in Somerset this week. So is Jesse Hook Wiles. The latter's voice has not been heard across the borders, and we assume that he is wearing rubber boots and talking in whispers.

corded whether he is wearing all his

Ex-Senate Treasurer John O. Shea/has left the Keystone Hotel and returned to the Republican fold. He was opposed to the Keystone policy of endorsing Democratic candidates for Congress. He was willing to have some changes in State government, but wants none in National government.

He is still for protection. He is still a Republican. He is not alone in this position.

The Long will case will probably not be as long-drawn-out as the Smith murder case.

The Republican Congressional Committee announces that all Republican candidates for Congress look alike to them. "It's a gentle but a jarring hint to Republican voters to refrain from joining in the assassination of the Republican party."

Frank Smith and his gun are costing the taxpayers of Fayette county a tiny sum.

The Uniontown Genius waxes indignant over Joe Kinley's use of money politics. Some prophets have to go away from home for honor, and others for indignation.

The Uniontown Herald, which professes to be responsible for the creation of the Uniontown Chamber of Commerce, seems somewhat impatient because that body is not producing any immediate results. Our contemporary should cheer up. Rome wasn't built in a day.

The Silent Affair is not mentioned in Shakespeare. It is an invention of West Point.

Uniontown's youthful Nimrods have been politely requested to cease practicing upon the defenseless citizens.

Bryan says the doctrines of New Nationalism are Democratic and that he has been preaching them for the past fourteen years. Is it possible that T. Roosevelt has been preaching the Bryan doctrine, or is the asterisk Bryan doctrine making a desperate effort to spare himself from the epithet of Dead Duck?

The loves of Sunny Italy are as ardent as his hates.

has its invitation in.

It has been discovered that Ernest Francis Anderson, former Congressman and now the able editor of the Washington Observer, is the local boss of the Exposed Party. If he is he wouldn't admit it, in politics he practices the rule of "Kiss and never tell."

The old residents, like the fabled ent, will come back occasionally just to have a look, and Conneltsville always looks good to them.

THE FLAMING ARC LIGHTS FOR MILL.

A New Illuminating Apparatus is Installed at Scottsdale.

EIGHTEEN ARE ARRESTED HERE

Persons Who Have Been Using the
B. & O. Tracks for a Garbage Dump, Caught by Fellow They Thought Was a Hobo—Other Notes of News.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Sept. 27.—The Scottsdale mill of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company have been partially equipped with a new electric light, the regenerative flaming arc by name. Both the Scottsdale plant and the Old Mound mill have had these lights installed in the topmost section of the buildings where they apply the description expressed in the name given the light, appearing like a flame inside of a globe, and casting a glare through darkness of the mills at night that looks as if a bonfire were blazing somewhere near. The problem of lighting a rolling mill, although there is plenty of glare from the hot sheets and the open furnace doors, is a serious one. The mill company has various kinds of lights in use, all run from the individual electric plants in connection with the mill and they are trying each form of light that promises to improve conditions for the men to work under. The flaming arc is the latest illuminating agency to be tried and thus far it is giving satisfaction. The mercury light has been in use for some time and this casts a ghastly glare over everything, until the mills and the workmen moving about in them produce a positively uneasy sensation upon the beholder.

Family All Together.
Justice and Mrs. John C. Brownfield had all the members of their family home on Sunday at their residence in East Scottsdale and a very pleasant time was had. Charles Brownfield, an old Scottsdale type, was home from Coshocton, O., where he has a place in a big composition house, where 12 machines are going in three shifts a day, and turning out much book work that is sent all over the country. Mrs. James Payley, a daughter of Justice and Mrs. Brownfield, came up from her home in Hickory for the day, while John H. and Joseph went over from town. Miss Alice and Thomas N. Brownfield, live at home. It has been some time since they were all gathered together under the paternal roof.

Home from Mexico.
Dr. and Mrs. F. J. Marshall arrived home yesterday from several weeks spent in touring Mexico. They are looking well and as if the trip did them good.

Condition of Frank Newman.
Frank, son of Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Newman of Market street, who has been critically ill with typhoid fever for some weeks, showed very slight indications of improvement in his condition yesterday, and it was hoped that this condition could be maintained. His brother, Homer C. Newman, returned to Alliance, O., after several days spent here.

Gone to Gettysburg.
Comrade John Boomer is the only veteran so far known who has gone from Scottsdale to Gettysburg to attend the ceremonies of dedicating the Pennsylvania state statue there. He was a member of Company B, 25th P. V.

Will Do Better Perhaps.
There were 15 men and women before Justice of the Peace John C. Brownfield yesterday. They were charged with littering up the tracks and right of way of the Mt. Pleasant branch of the B. & O. railroad from the Scottsdale station up to the cut above. This has been going on for some time, and the railroad officials were wholly provoked at the filth that the road foreman sent in for the cleaning of the track that particular place. These costs of cleaning are said to have eclipsed anything on the road. A detective in the employ of the railroad came here several days ago and looked about along the track in that section. Many thought him some hobo that was loitering around and paid little attention to him, continuing to dump garbage, tin cans and truck of that sort along the track, although efforts had been made before to cause them to resist the impulses to use the tracks for a garbage dump. As a result warrants were issued for 15 people and these were let down easy with a fine of $1.00 and the warning to cease such practices in the future. The arrests were made by Special Officer Thomas C. Phelan of Connellsville.

Has Returned Home.
Mrs. M. L. Tindler has returned to her home in Scottsdale after some weeks' visit with friends and relatives in Pittsburg and New Florence.

Committee Meeting.
The advertising committee of the Davis and Mills evangelistic services which begin next Sunday, according met at the Y. M. C. A. rooms last evening and began preparation of their publicity campaign. It is expected that the new tabernacle which is to be built on Spring street will arrive about today or tomorrow, as it requires several days to build it. The first meetings are scheduled for Sunday afternoon. W. J. Darkell, chairman of the inside committee, is commencing the organization of the choir, which will be taken of the most able and singers from all the churches are being engaged for the services and these are to meet tonight.

Population Center Moves To the West

Special to The Courier.
CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 27.—The center of population of the United States has moved westward from Ohio, cleared Indiana with a jump and landed in Illinois, unless the census bureau experts are mistaken. Between 1890 and 1900 the population center, then down in Ohio, changed less than during the 10 years preceding. The change landed it at a point in Ohio in a hickory grove six miles southeast of Columbus, Ind. To reach Illinois it will have to move some 70 miles, but it exceeded that distance in the decade between 1870 and 1880, when it left the vicinity of Frederickburg, W. Va., to roost 20 miles south of Chillicothe, O. The "pole of empire" has migrated almost due westward since it got its start in 1790 east of Baltimore about 25 miles. By 1910 it was to miles northwest of Washington, D. C. By 1920 it was near Woodstock, Va., and then the migrations to western states began to move the center westward into West Virginia at a lively clip. In 1890 the theoretical or rather mathematical center was in southern Ohio, only 5 miles southwest of Cincinnati. Just where the next census and those 10, 20 and 30 years in the future will locate that population center is a matter of keen interest to southern and western states. Remarkable growth of population in the southwest and west are shown by the present census. During the last two weeks figures for Texas have been made public, and they show that counties that ten years ago were sparsely settled now have from 15,000 to 25,000 population each. The remarkable increase in population in Oklahoma must also be taken into consideration in a speculation as to where the center of population is likely to light. But there have been large increases in population in the east, particularly in the larger cities.

Miss Fretts a New Teacher at Perry High

Special to The Courier.
PERRY, Ind., Sept. 26.—At a meeting of the Perry township School Board held in the High School building at this place on Saturday afternoon, Miss Kathryn Fretts was retained as teacher in the local High School. Miss Fretts was teacher of Room No. 1, but was temporarily transferred to the High School a few weeks ago to fill the vacancy made in the faculty by the untimely resignation of Miss Isabel Becker, who accepted a position in the Bollevorn schools. Miss Fretts will be charged with instruction of literary work.

Miss Mary Huff, the supply teacher, was retained as teacher of Room No. 1.

The addition of another room to the local public school was deferred, but it is reported that another room will be added at some future date.

Members of the board were present at the meeting.

J. H. Baugh of Perryopolis, while walking on top of some cars at the Lynn works of the Washington Cold & Coke Company, near here, was the victim of a painful accident on last Saturday morning, when his foot slipped and he fell from the car to the ground, breaking his right arm near the wrist. Dr. Kamberer reduced the fracture.

A man usually buys a hat that's "in style," but the modern hat for men has lots to answer for.

Hatmakers are growing more numerous every day. Hats make excellent boarding places for the parasite germs which sap the life from the roots of the hair.

When your hair begins to fall out and your scalp is full of dandruff it is a sure sign that these countless germs are busily at work.

There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newb's Hairpeptide to the scalp—it will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result.

LOBSTER SALAD CAUSES DEATH.

Two Diners Dead; Many Others Ill of Typhoid Fever.

ELIZABETH, N. J., FEARS SPREAD

One Hundred Persons Ate of the Salad and Each Day Brings New Typhoid Cases to Light—Physicians Puzzled as to Its Something New.

Elizabeth, N. J., Sept. 27.—Two are dead and twelve more are ill with a malignant form of typhoid fever, which, it is believed, came from lobster salad eaten at the dinner served on Wednesday, Sept. 7, under the auspices of the Elms Nons club in honor of John Kelly, a newly appointed policeman.

The epidemic is rapidly spreading among all those who attended the dinner and each day new cases are coming to light.

Two are said to be in grave danger. More than 100 men attended the dinner and ate the salad. Local physicians fear an epidemic of typhoid fever as a result. An analysis of the blood of two of the victims has disclosed the typhus germ, and this fact is puzzling the physicians attending the victims because it is not generally known to the medical profession that lobsters, like oysters, carry the typhus germ.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Everybody will be loony by and by, according to Dr. C. G. Davis. In an address to the superintendents of the Christian Endeavor societies he declared that chief among the causes which are sapping civilization is the neglected child.

"One man out of every 300 in the United States is insane already," he said. "Civilization is crumbling—it is going mad. The physicians know it; the people don't know it; you Christian Endeavorers don't know it, but nevertheless it is true."

CHAPTER IX.
EXIT LORD LOVELAND.

LOVELAND walked out of the dining room of the palatial hotel hardly knowing what he meant to do.

His wish was to punish those who had insulted him, but how was the question arising in his brain. A gentleman could not knock down a management or punch its head. "A management" seemed intangible, out of reach.

Val's first thought was to march up to the desk and "have a row" with somebody, but an instant's reflection showed him that it would be more in accordance with dignity to go to his own quarters and command a representative of the "management" to come to him.

This resolve he carried out. Having reached his room and called down through the telephone for the manager, he was not kept waiting long before a gentlemanly middle-aged person appeared at his sitting room door.

"Are you the manager of this hotel?" Loveland inquired brusquely.

"I represent the manager," the newcomer returned.

"Very well, then," said Loveland. "I want you to tell me the meaning of this." And he indicated the typewritten letter and the two bills, which he had laid conspicuously on the table.

The man silently glanced at the papers, about which he was evidently well informed already. "The meaning is that unfortunately we're obliged to request that you vacate this suit immediately," he replied.

"Suppose I refuse to go?"

"Oh, I guess you won't do that!"

"You're right," said Val. "I wouldn't stop here now if you paid me twelve times as much as you want me to pay you. And, by the way, I can't pay tonight. You'll have to wait till tomorrow, when I can get to the—bank."

"I'm afraid we can't wait," the other answered quickly. "If you aren't able to pay we shall have to keep your baggage till you do."

Loveland stared. "That's a little too steep, isn't it?" he inquired. "You turn me out of your hotel in the most insulting and unprovoked manner and then expect me to go somewhere else without my luggage. Are these American manners with foreigners?"

"They have to be with some foreigners," returned the other, smiling mysteriously.

"I intend to go now, whether you like or not," said Val. "And take my luggage with me."

"You can't take it unless you pay your bill. That's the law, and our police know how to enforce it. If I were you I wouldn't do anything to make it necessary to call the police. Once in their hands, you might be quite awhile getting out, you know."

Val believed that Cadwallader Hunter had somehow contrived to bring about this hideous state of affairs; though he could not imagine how unless all Americans were ready to band together and avenge one another's fancied wrongs against a stranger.

"My luggage is worth a lot more than what I owe you here," he said. "We have heard all about that luggage," was the meaning reply.

Val bit his lip. For the moment he had forgotten Foxham's treachery, but he remembered it now with recurring rage. Evidently the valet had poured forth the history of the great unpacking episode.

"In my opinion we shall be lucky if the sale of your effects covers the bill," calmly went on the representative of the "management."

"I wouldn't advise your people to try to sell my things!" exclaimed Loveland.

"Of me, I've got to stay and see you don't remove any articles of value."

"By Jove! So that's it—my own or yours?"

"What's yours is ours at present, and what's ours is our own, as the bride said to the bridegroom."

Val could almost have laughed, though not at the joke. He, the Marquis of Loveland, an officer in the Grenadier guards, was to be watched lest he should steal the hotel soap or sneak off with his own toothbrush!

He went white and red and white again. If by a word he could have tumbled the whole hotel down in an earthquake he would have been willing to be caught under the ruins. He had a wild, boyish conviction that by subjecting himself now to the extreme inconvenience he could by and by cause the hotel management poignant remorse. Yes, he could take them at their word. He would walk out of the house just as he was, leaving everything he had behind him. He would not even take his overcoat, and

"TWO ARE TOO MUCH ENGAGED TO SEE ANYBODY TONIGHT."

If he were struck down with pneumonia he would be the worse for these insolent people.

His cap, his only head covering, as he had forgotten a bowler on board ship, lay on a table, and he held it out for the enemy's inspection. "You say all that is mine is yours," he sneered.

"This may have cost 6 or 7 shillings when it was new. Now it would fetch 2 at most. I will pay you for it. Half a crown is the least I have. Pray keep the change."

He laid a coin, his last large coin, down on the table where the cap had been and without another word walked unobtrusively out of the room. Below in the great hall through which he had to pass on his way out of the hotel lights glared and dazzled, and the talk and laughter of many persons sounded in his ears. Loveland pushed on blindly, conscious of himself as the one rent entity in a crowd of will-o'-the-wisps and wicked lure lights. His sole concern with the people in the hotel, glancing picture was that they should suspect nothing of his feelings.

He walked with his head up and something that he meant for a smile on his lips, nor was it an affection that he appeared to recognize no one, though Cadwallader Hunter, who had been waiting to see this exit, believed it to be.

The night was warm for November in New York. Still, there was a decided crispness in the air which Loveland felt as he went out.

The streets were brilliant with light, and half New York appeared to be abroad, although the theaters had been in full swing for nearly an hour, but all the women wore cloaks and the men overcoats. Loveland, in his dinner jacket and wide expanse of shirt front, his pumps and silk stockings, his cloth traveling cap pulled over his eyes, would have been noticeable even if his height and good looks had not made him a marked figure. Everybody who passed stared, and more than a few glanced back at him. Here and there some pretty woman laughed at a joking comment whispered by her escort, and when his first hot rage began to cool it was unconsciously borne in upon Loveland that he was the observed of many observers.

Here he was, on a winter's night, a foreigner in a strange city, walking the streets without an overcoat and with only a coin or two in his pocket. He remembered that in the afternoon when dealing out visiting cards and letters of introduction he had slipped his cardcase into a pocket of his overcoat, where it still remained. That overcoat remained in one of the rooms late his at the hotel. What a fool he had been, after all, to leave it behind. Meeting a policeman, he inquired for a respectable, inexpensive hotel in a quiet street not too far away and did his best to look unconscious of the big man's concentrated gaze fixed on the large white oval of his shirt front.

"Yes, might try the New House, on Forty-third street," was the advice that followed upon reflection, and Loveland was obliged to ask three times before he was able to translate "Forty-third" into "Thirty-third" street. Then he had to turn and retrace his steps, for he had been wandering up town and must have covered some distance, as he guessed by the length of time it took him to reach the Waldorf-Astoria again.

And the light caught and photographed him in passing a man who had been standing in front of the hotel under the front canopy with the air of waiting for some one started after Loveland, walking just fast enough to keep him well in sight.

Val turned into Thirty-third street and stopped before the New House, which advertised itself in a blaze of starry electric letters. The man on his trail smiled as he saw the tall figure in evening dress hesitate for an instant and then hurt himself at a revolving door. He himself stroled on, but he did not go far. When he had taken a dozen steps he wheeled, passed the hotel again, took a dozen more steps and again came back.

It was when he had just taken his sixth turn that Loveland shot out through the revolving door even more suddenly than he had shot in. The watcher was near enough to see the look on his face—the tenseness of the lips and drawing together of the eyebrows—and his own expression said "I thought so!" as plainly as words.

If there had been any one there to read it, but Loveland was entirely absorbed in himself and in bitter thoughts of the hateful experience he had just gone through.

It was hardly to be hoped that there would be a room disengaged in a hotel for a nervous gentleman with an exposed white shirt front, no luggage and a missing cardcase. When Val had explained that he was Lord Loveland, just landed from Liverpool, the hotel clerk turned away to bid him either a good or a bad night and seemed no more inclined to remember the existence of an unoccupied bedroom than if his client had been plain Mr. Smith or Mr. Jones.

"We had a gentleman from England here last week," he said pleasantly. "His name was Walker, London. Sorry we can't accommodate your lordship."

Then Loveland had squared his shoulders and marched out into the night, not inclined to try any more hotels. He felt very young in his loneliness and humiliation, and his heart yearned wistfully for the shabby Scotch smoking box where his mother lived and thought long thoughts of him.

He remembered hearing Betty or Jim Harborough say that in American towns a man might call upon a family he knew well up to the hour of 10 in the evening. It was not nearly 10 yet, and though there was no family in New York whom Val knew well, it was a case of any port in a storm.

The Collieries were now out of the running, and the Miltons, but a Mr. and Mrs. Beverly with a daughter had (half apologetically) invited him to visit at their house in Park avenue. They were rich or richish, though with a taint of trade behind them, and the girl was pretty or prettish.

He had recently refused the invitation, pleading many engagements difficult to keep it visiting, but he could easily explain the late call by lightly recounting the story of his misfortune, making a jest of it and throwing himself on the family's mercy. He hoped and believed that they would insist upon his staying all night in their house; also that a loan sufficient to pay his hotel bill and redeem his luggage might be suggested.

The prospect of release from all his woes was so soothing and apparently so easy to compass that the mere thought was a warming cordial. Val walked briskly back into Fifth avenue and asked the way of the first man he met. He found Park avenue a dignified street and with the pleasantest anticipations ran up the steps of the Beverly's house, the number of which had fortunately stuck in his memory. There were lights in all the windows of the two lower floors, and as he pressed the electric bell he saw a shadow slip across the half-transparent silk curtains, a shadow which was like a faint silhouette of plump little Madge Beverly.

"It's all right. They're at home, thank goodness!" he said to himself as he waited for the door to open, and a sense of calm well being fell upon him with the assurance that his troubles were over at last.

A neat servant was soon framed against a yellow background of cheerful light, and at some distance, screened to shadow, the man who had followed Loveland waited once more with a certain anxiety in his eyes.

Val inquired for Mr. and Mrs. Beverly. They were at home, said the servant, in the "dining room" with a party of relatives who had come to welcome them back after their visit to Europe. If the gentleman would step into the reception room and send up his card Mr. and Mrs. Beverly would no doubt be down in a minute.

"But when people are at home one doesn't send in one's card," said Loveland, arguing according to English ways. "Tell your master and mistress that Lord Loveland has called, but will not keep them long from their friends," said Val, growing impatient under the man's narrow look.

The servant resented the suggestion that as a free man in a free country he could have a master and mistress. And a Lord Anybody rounded like a practical joke to him, for though he had begun by being a Swede, he had been an American since he was short content.

However, he was well trained according to his lights and the family traditions of the Beverlys. He ushered the practical joker into a handsome dining room and vanished upstairs to explain the odd young gentleman who never announced himself with cards.

The servant returned with a grave face. Indeed, it could not have been more solemn if he had come to break the news that all Lord Loveland's surviving relatives had perished together in a holocaust.

"Mr. and Mrs. Beverly are very sorry, sir," said the man, "but they are too much engaged to see anybody to-night."

Val rose laughingly. "If I trouble you to open the door," he said as the servant stood petrified. And so once more Lord Loveland was thrown upon the hospitality of the streets. The fitting shadows were gone from the windows, which still gleamed cheerily. But they were dark to the outcast's heart.

THE SOISSON.

"The Lost Trail."

"The Lost Trail" now on its sixth annual tour to the Pacific Coast, comes to the Soisson Theatre Friday, Sept. 30, and is by many authorities considered the best western play ever written. It is from the pen of Anthony L. Mills whose novels, stories and plays are favorably known throughout the country.

The piece was first presented five years ago at the 11th Street Theatre, Bud Larabee.

New York City, where it scored an emphatic hit. Later, a production was made at the Curtis theatre, Denver, Colorado, where its success was phenomenal. The engagement lasting nine weeks, the consensus of opinion being that the play was the best seen in the western metropolis during the entire season and surpassing either "Alison" or "The Squamman"—a commendation of its faithfulness to the character of the country its depiction.

Howe's Travel Pictures.

The following telegram was recently received by Lyman H. Howe, manager of the Garrick theatre, Philadelphia: "Mattie and evening houses entirely sold out. Tomorrow evening every day this week. Turning hundreds away. Your truly remarkable features the talk of all Philadelphia. Can't you extend engagement?"

This is of particular interest to local amusement patrons because Mr. Howe will present exactly the same program at the Soisson theatre matinees and night Saturday, October 1. It includes exclusive scenes of the funeral of King Edward VII in London and Windsor with close facial portraits of the world rulers attending it, and of our special ambassador, Col. Roosevelt; the floods of Norway; Japanese jubilee; the eruption of Mt. Etna; a view up the Eiffel Tower; through Switzerland in winter; sensational Italian artillery manoeuvres and many others.

Jas. T. Powers in Havana.

The Messrs. Shubert will bring to the Soisson Theatre Monday, October 3, James T. Powers in the famous and much heralded production, "Havana." The play has been praised chiefly on account of its beauty of scenery and costumes, the humor which James T. Powers, as the American manager of the piece, has injected into the book, and the delightful melodies found in the score. The music is one of the chief features of the piece, which is easily accounted for when it is known that Leslie Stuart, composer of "Florodora," wrote the numbers. He has given the piece something like eighteen musical go in

MAN IN CASE LIVES HERE

Confined in Little Room at Her Home
Little Girl Raves All Day Long.
No Clue Secured by Police to Rent
Robberies.

Special to The Courier.
MT. PLEASANT, Sept. 27.—Because her lover, an Italian of Connelville, refused to marry her, Carmela Latta, a pretty 15 year old Italian girl of this place, has become a raving maniac. Confined in a little room at her Washington street home, she pleads for her lover to come to her and keep his promise to wed her. Carmela and her mother, who were supposed to be married this month, but the intended groom went the Italian girl a letter telling her that the engagement was broken. The girl suffered such a shock that her reason has entirely left her. In her demented condition she sings and dances at what she thinks is her wedding. The parents of the girl are trying to locate the man, but have been unsuccessful.

No Clue to Robberies.
The local police have not yet unearthed any new clues in connection with the two robberies that were committed in town last Saturday evening. At that time the home of David Stoner of East Washington street and the residence of Ira Shaw of the same street were entered.
It is probable that the same people committed both offenses, as, at least two hours intervened between the robberies. Shaw's house was entered about midnight and the thieves who gained entrance through a window escaped with $15 in money and a $30 suit of clothes that had just been brought home from the tailor. The suit was later found in the lower part of the yard where the thieves had abandoned it. Stoner's residence, about four squares below, was entered between 2 and 2:30 o'clock that same morning. Entrance was made through the cellar window. The thieves secured only 12 cents in money and they entered the pantry and cut a fresh apple pie, only one piece being taken. The robbers were not after anything but money, for the sidewalk, which was full of silver, was not touched. The police have only slight clues to work on.

"Mr. Stallings has resigned from the management of the team and I shall notify Captain Chase that he is permanently in charge of the Highlanders with absolute authority. The charges lodged against Chase by Stallings have been investigated thoroughly and have been shown to be unfounded. That is all there is today. Stallings and I have parted the best of friends and there is no hard feeling."
Stallings seems to think that he will be prevented by President Johnson from securing another manager ship in the other league. He blames Johnson for his present plight.

BISHOP BUYS LOT

At Trevor and Market Streets and Will Build Home.
W. C. Bishop yesterday closed a deal for the purchase of a lot at the corner of Trevor and Market streets from Thomas Jones for $2,000. Bishop expects to erect a dwelling on the lot in the near future. The lot is a desirable corner property in a newly developing section of town in the rear of Prospect street and Fairview avenue.
Quite a number of nice homes have been built there during the past few years including that of President James H. Millard of Town Council.

The Union Meat Company
Sells better meats at lower prices because we sell for cash.

Commencing Wednesday the 28th and until Saturday A SPECIAL SALE OF FINE SILKS

For the Beginning of the Fall Dressmaking Season.

This sale of silks will bring realization to many people how unnecessary it is for them to leave Connelville seeking finery. We are our own severest critics when it comes to judging the merits of this sale; and our own judgment, reinforced by that of scores of outside critics is that the present showing of fine silks and the prices on each yard surpasses our best previous efforts as well as any other similar collection now shown in three counties.

We have bought Silks more lavishly than ever before bought with sound judgment and with an exact knowledge of what women will require for their season's costumes. It is an elaborate creation needed for an important social function, the material is here

Practical Silks

Reliable Silks

The quality is not for an instant sacrificed for price, but Wright-Metzler's aggressiveness in silk buying compels prices that are always lowest for quantities. Buying larger quantities lowers the price also

SCOTSDALE IN FIELD WITH FOOTBALL TEAM

They Would Like to Hear from Perryopolis and Other Teams.

Special to The Courier.
SCOTSDALE, Sept. 27.—The Scottdale football team has reorganized and has secured some very able men for its lineup. This team averages about 135 or 140 pounds and issues a challenge to any team within reasonable distance. Elmer, the crack fullback of last year's team, S. H. Stearns is a new man in the lineup, as well as Carroll, another back field man. A Jarrett, an old time football man and known all over the county for his knowledge of the game, has been secured as coach. The boys are already down to hard work under the watchful eyes of Jarrett and Brooks.
The boys are not lacking in anything. What they lack in weight is made up in cleverness. They certainly do not handle the pig skin easily and expect to put out a winning team.
Collins is at quarter again this year although there are three other candidates for the place. Any team wishing a game with Perryopolis, Brookville, or any other team, should contact the Scottdale team. The schedule is nearly filled, but Scottdale would like to hear from Perryopolis, High, Dunbar High, Connelville and Uniontown teams.
